YOU CANNOT OVERSTATE ITS CREAT VALUE IN KEEPING THE BLOOD PURE AND FREE FROM DISEASE. AS an illustration of the beneficial effects of ENO'S 'FRUIT SALT,' I have no hesitation in giving the particulars of the case of one of my friends. SLUGGISH ACTION of the LIVER and BILIOUS HEADACHE affected him, so he was obliged to live upon only a few articles of diet, and to be most sparing in their use. This did nothing in effecting a cure, although persevered in for twenty-five years, and also consulting, eminent members of the faculty. By the use of ENO'S 'FRUIT SALT' he now ENJOYS VIGOROUS HEALTH; he has NEVER had a HEADACHE or CONSTIPATION since he commenced to use it, about six months ago, and can partake of his food to the great satisfaction of himself and friends. You may well extend its use pro bone publico. I find it makes a VERY REFRESHING and INVIGORATING DRINK.—I remain, yours faithfully, J. W. Neil."—(From the late Rev. J. W. The effect of ENO'S 'FRUIT SALT' on any DISORDERED and FEVERISH condition is SIMPLY MARVELLOUS. It is, in fact, NATURE'S OWN REMEDY and an UNSURPASSED ONE.

Hongkong Tides.

The Tide Table given below has been compiled by the Nautical Almanac Office in London from the result of the analysis of observations taken by means of an automatic tide recordin machine in the Water Police Basin at Asım Sha Tsui during the years 1887-8-9. The zero of the table is Low Water Ordinary Spring Tides, which has been found to be 2 feet below thean sea level. To obtain the depth of water on the tide gauge at the Victoria Naval Yard add 5 ft... 7 in., and on the gauge at Lamont Dock, Aberdeen, add 12 ft. 9 in. to the height given in the table.

AMERICAN STORYETTES. GRAVE AND GAY, EPIGRAMMATIC AND OTHERWISE.

Lord Russell of Killowen, years before he took silk, was sitting in court, when another barrister, leaning across the benches during the hearing of a trial for bigamy, whispered : 'Russell, what's the cx. treme penalty for bigamy?" . Two mothers.

in-law, replied Russell

In the biography of William Stokes, written by his son which has just appeared in London, the story is told of how Stokes was sent over to Dublin during the great Famine to show the people how to make soup. He asked a starving beggar why she did not go and get some of the soup that was being freely distributed. Soup, is it, your houer! said the woman; 'sure it isn't soup at all.' 'And what is it, then I' inquired Stokes. 'It is nothin,' your honor, but a quart of water b'illed dewn to a pint, to make it sthrong!

At one period during the Rebellion there were no less than seventy-four major-generals and two hundred and seventy-six brigadiers on the rolls, far more than there was any use for. On one occasion, when one of these superfluous generals was cantured by the enemy, with a number of me and horses, somebody undertook to condole with President Lincoln on the subject, 846 remarking that the loss of the captured general's service was a great minfortune to the government. 'Pooh!' replied Lincoln, 'I can make another brigadier general in two minutes. But horses are scarce, and cost two hundred dollars apiece.

At Camp Thomas, Chickamauga, soon after Colonel Andrew Burt was promoted to the colonelcy of the Twenty-Fifth Colorthey would have to play ball an hour each day, in order to get accustomed to the Southern sun. 'Now,' said the Colonel, 'you boys come out and we will take a turn at ball-playing. I'm going to play with you, I'm not Colonel Burt while playing but simply Andy Burt. Now, play bell. and with a vicious awipe he drove the ball hard past second for three bage. A large, grosey, black soldier was coaching, and yelled ag the Colonel made a dive for first; Run, Andy run, you tailowed fated knowie-knowe, dader-gastored son of a gun ; get your three Eags The Colonel stopped at first turning on his heel, returned to the home plate, and donning his straps, re-marked: I'm Colonel Burt from this time on, or until further orders.

The manager of the Electrical Exposition in Philadelphia asked Mr Edison to send on a phonographic cylinder setting forth some of his latest ideas of electrical interest. Mr Edison complied in his own-The message was as follows: 'My phonographic cylinder for your lecture this evening and to say a few words to the INTEREST allowed on Current Accounts | audience. I do not think the audience wouldtake any interest in dry scientific subjects, they might be interested in a little story that a man sent me on a phonographic cylinder the other day from San Francisco. In the year 1873 a man from Massachusetts came to California with a chronic liver complaint. He searched all over the coast for a mineral spring to cure the disease, and finally he found down in the San Josquin Valley a spring the waters of which almost instantly cured him. He thereupon started a sanitarium, and people cored. Last year this man died, and so powerful had been the action of the waters that they had to take his liver out and kill it with a club. - Yours truly, Edison.

THE NURSES' MEMORIAL FUND. MEETING OF BUSICAIDERS.

A meeting of the subscribers to the Nurses' Memorial Fund was held to-day in the Chambor of Commerce Room, City Hall. Rev. R. F. Cobbold presided.

The Chairman read the notice convening

Mr T. Jackson, the Hop. Treasurer, said -Ladies and gentlemen, the account was supposed to close on Wednesday night, but we get 825 extra on Thursday, bringing the total sum subscribed to 82,036. I may say that there was a general impression that the subscriptions should be limited to about $10 each, or I have no doubt a very much larger subscription would have been got: You will all have noticed in the statements published from day to day in the newspapers how very widely spread was the collection. There was a great number of names for small amounts which shows the deep sympathy of the community with the deceased sisters and their friends. It is for me now to hand over to you the memorandum of accounts.

The Chairman-Ladies and Gentlemen. on behalf of the Committee which I hope will be elected at this meeting to take further steps in this matter, I have received the memorandum showing that $2,536 have been subscribed for the purpose of the memorial. I think the only other busithat we have before us at this meeting is to elect a Committee, which would suggest would be a small one, for the purpose of carrying out the object in view. I believe the wishes of the friends of the deceased ladies have been consulted, and that they have Observatory :stated that they hope a Committee will be formed, and they will entirely trust the Committee to carry this matter out to the best possible end. I would ask you. then, to consider the proposal that a Committee be formed to carry this out. I do not wish to propose the names of the Committee myself. I think if you have anyone to suggest it will come best from you as a body of aubscribers. Dr Bateson Wright-I beg to propose that Mr Jackson, Mr Cobbold, the Chief Justice, Mr Chater and Dr Atkinson form a Committee, and the decision of the Committee should be final. We should not have another meeting of the subscribers to consider the matter. Mr Jackson suggested the name of Mr Ormsby in place of his own, but ultimately Mr Ormsby was included with the others in the resolution. Mr Wilcox seconded the resolution.

The Chairman said—I think in all probabilly wintever the Committee decide to do, | who are passing through a hotel I managed, | bouring clump of calers, winging their they will probably have some plans of whatever memorial is proposed, and give an opportunity to the public to see them. FROM THE FRENCH OF L. ANDRE DE REGIS. d Henri Brun.

With a heavy heart, Annette had noticed the handsome Fulcran fall in love with the daughter of old Maucas, the inn-keeper on the road to Nebian. She had seen her run after him, and finally marry him, for the artful minx had known exactly how to make him keep his proper distance.

Annette had helped at the wedding, as well as at all the festivities connected with it; but, in her bruised and broken heart, a terrible rancour had taken root and sprung up against the young wife who had robbed her of him she had loved in secret for months and months, while he had been wholly ignorant of that lively and fervent passion.

This bitter feeling had gradually deepened into hatred, so much so, that at times, her brain was crossed by the most fearful blood-red visions. Yet to be unable to satisfy it, to calmly help, like a stranger, inall the glad preparations for the coming of a first-born, made Annette feel old; and although she was only thirty, wrinkles and streaks of white in her hair had already begun to make their appearance.

Fulcran's wife was with child. The whole household of old Mancas, with whom the young married couple had lived, the better to assist in the business of the inn, was in a high state of gleeful excito-That, with anything like reasonable tast, ment, in expectation of the joyful event. They spoke of nothing else but of the child that was about to be born, and which, ere Tong, would mingle its fresh cries of laugh ter with the sonorous songs of the many carters who habitually stopped at the inn, For our Volunteers, all, are of law the before going into Clermont.

The child came -a great bouncing boy, weighing ten pounds; but the mother died and Fulcran was left a widower. He was overcome with a silent grief that made him surly, and that well nigh sent him mad.

Annette alone felt pleased and at ease. Her lined face lit up with a wicked smile when the news came to her-

She succeeded in getting herself taken n as servant at the inn; not that she had at all dreamt of replacing the dead woman in Fulcran's affections; but she had, in spite of herself, felt drawn to that house from which all joy seemed banished. She suffered in no way whatever from the grief that weighed heavily on Fulcran; she felt perfectly contented and by no means constrained. Even her heart was closed; and love, her old love, had left it as though by enchantment.

But the child, that child which was growing up; and which became each day liker to its dead mother, re-awakened her slumbering rancour, and gradually fanned her smouldering hatred ; and this tor ared her more even than her former passion.

It is reported in the course of a humorous speech that an officer at the Ceylon Volunteer Camp had drunk twenty-seven whickies and sodus in one day! The speech was 'after dinner.' Perhaps it is well not to take the statement too literally. The feature of the Hongkong Camp is its abstomiousness.—China Mail

HUMOURS OF A POREION LAND. By the author of 'Impressions of Hongkong

In Italy, the land of song and blue skies, dark, handsome, vivacious and picturesque-to purchase bouquets and nosegays-in England, the land of the stoic and eastwinds, half-starved, shabbily-clad lads and lasses with pinched features, hollow-eyed and blue lips, accost the passer to buy their floral offerings. - If his heart is not adam - provement ant, in sheer pity he purchases the violete or primrose, and more often than not, tenders a coin without making a purchase. In Hongkong, however, beautiful bunches of tropical and sub-tropical flowers are offered for sale by Celestials whose smile go allround and tio in a bow at the back. Worthily is China called 'Flowery-Land, for they-the flowers not the Celestials-tare exquisite in colour and rich in the most delightful aromas. The prices are reasonable, and as such elsewhere can only be grown in hot-houses; they are new to the many, and naturally much appreciated, which realls the roply of a little three-year-old girl upon being asked 'how old she was 'T'se not old, I'se most new.' Curious sights and scenes are to be witnessed ifones cares to stroll along, the quays, lined one side by warehouses, shops and marts, whilst a line of numerous small stalls or stands, such as one sees on any Racecourse. on Melbourne Cup Day, the English Dorby or the Grand Prix-de-Paris, and on sador in London, and Mr Balfour have which are displayed monkey nuts, banamas, evoked various reports as to the nature of oranges, gelatine berries, pine-apples, the negociations. Added to all this, the steamer. shipping and sampan traffic, to and fro from the various wharves, must be counted, forming a formidable foreground of bustle and excitement, in keeping with the remainder of the picture. Street ories and hawkers, which in the capital of the Old World will soon be a thing of the past, can scarcely be said to exist in Hongkong, though if the vendor of magnetised keyhole-plates for front doors that would attract ordinary stool keys from a distance of two feet-all you have to do to find the keyhole being to take out your key and hang on to it, and concerning which three men are reported to have been injured in the crowd which gathered buy the novelty-started out, he would find a ready sale and price no object. There are one or two calls, however, that coming from Chinamen sound peculiar, viz ; fee-cream ' and ' Oystors,' Speaking of noise and nysters recalls that fearful brainracker. What noise annoys a noisy oyster?' At first blush it appears a simple question, easy to repeat until uttered once or twice then mental vertigo sets in. But it's when the answer-'A noisy noise annoys a noisy oyster i' is told, a padded darkened room becomes the only fitting place for the wretched victim of misplaced confidence. A Chinese wedding is colobrated in a manner befitting a land where you, can watch the sun set with the moon thinks brightly behind you. The bride is placed in a covered sedan chair and conveyed to the house of the bridegroom, where the relations and friends, seated round the tables, await her arrival and dinner. Assisted by a couple of women, the bride walks around them with her hands held above her head, so that the cleaves of her wedding garment hide her face. The guests, as she moves through the ascenibly, endeavour to trip her up and pass uncomplimentary if not rude remarks. If she loses her temper of falls, it is considered a bad omen for the husband. If she does both, which I should magine the most probable, the consenuences are in favour of breakfast late, steak burnt, tes thin, bread stale and teneral collapse of the honeymoon. A Chinese household is divided into three parts-the back premises being devoted to household purposes, the centre portion to the wife, whilst the front is apportioned to the husband. Should the husband desire to visit his wife, he notifies her by sending a message to that effect, a similar procedure on the part of the wife being taken when she wishes to visit her husband. The custom recalls the chivalry of a bygone western age. Now adays, the husband drops in upon his wife, in soiled boots and dusty clothes, with the announcement that he's got a couple of beleaguered friends who will stop overnight. As his dutiful and loyal betterhalf smilingly receives his friends, she wonders whether he thinks she's running s Fifth Avenue Hotel. It is not till three a.m., when his impromptu shake-down of rugs and chairs suddenly collapses, that i dawns in on him 'Whether he hasn't put his foot in it again.' All things considered, Chinese marriage customs throw a strong light on the Woman's Rights such a simple pastime as it at first eight appears. The seraphic expression expressive of a martyrdom resignation, which spreads over the face of the Chinese marker upon a false shot, must be seen and felt to be understood. His smile of gentle pity and commiseration, does not tend to enable one to shine 'a la Roberts,' rather does it raise feelings of murderous tendeucles that kind of make you want to walts round and elay someone; that being prevented of excoution, it ends in making you toar the cloth or sending your ball spinning along the floor. TRIAL BY JURY IN INDIA. Calcutta, September 2.—The reference o the Calcutta High Court, regarding the ease where a native jury unanimously acquitted three natives, who had hounded an Austrian named Joseph Siewold to leath at Shallmar, during the recent Plague scare, has resulted in Justices Ameer-Alie and Honderson setting aside the perverse verdict, and sentencing the two ring-leaders to transportation for life; and the third mun, who took no active part in the actual murder, to two years' rigorous imprisonment for rioting. Their lordships said that such frenzied zoal must be properly repressed, and they only withheld capital punishment owing to the considerable length of time which had elapsed. Referring to the verdict of the jury, they said that such verdicis could only reflect discredit on the jury system here.

BAST AFRICA. Bombay, August 31.—An eye-witness thus describes the ambuscade into which the dotachment of the 4th Bombay Rifles (consisting of 41 Rifles under Jeunadar Radha Singh) fell on the 22nd June last, on the Malkhanah Road, near Camp Holished, Fast-Africa, when a Native Officer and 27 Non-Commissioned Officers and men were cut up :— We had reached a hollow beyond the old buts on the Handsruff Road and were moving with an advaneed guard about 50 yards in front of the main body, which was in two files, the rear guard being about 100 yards in the rear. The advanced guard had just smerged from the holew into mere open ground, when a few of the enemy appeared close in their front. The moment they commenced to retire on the main body. large numbers of the enemy sprang up from the grass on our right, and rushed in on us, ecurating the advanced and rear guards from the main body. The rush on our ight was immediately followed by an overwhelming rush on our left. Jomadar Radha Singh, who was just in front of the main body, had barely time to give thu command 'ready' before he was struck down by five or six spears. The onslaught of the enemy was so sudden, that it is probable that some men were struck down before they could load their rifles. Those who could fire did so, and the enemy were checked slightly. We fixed bayonsts as onportunity offered, and, firing, retreated tovards the dry bed of a lake, in order to get clear of the jungle. When clear of the ungle we collocted in small parties, firing ou such parties of the enemy who attempted to oursus us, and retired towards the Camp. some of the enemy twice attempted to pursue us in the open, but could not face our fire, and took refuge in the bush. They were not less than 409 strong, and must have lost more men than we, since at the first discharge of our rilles some twenty of them fell and expersiothers were shotoreayonotted during our retreat. After the onemy had sended to pursue us, we saw them carrying off such of their friends ashad fallen outside the thick bush. Ir is just as well that before the protocol had begun to operate at Manila the city hould have been carried by assault and have thus become a prize of American arms. President McKinley is credited with an intention to hold Manila and catablish there a naval base, and no question can. arise in the Paris negotiations as to the right of the United States to retain what she has won and holds, in possession. The accounts indicate that the attack was galant and spirited, while the bombardment and storming of the place were carried out n a manner consistent with humanity. One advantage of this well-executed operation is that the Filipinos will have had an onportunity of noting how the Americans ight, and with what different kind of forces hey will have to deal if they become troublesome from those they have hitherto met in the field. The Hongkong Filipinos. hastening to assure the American Consul of their allegiance, seem to have been impressed in a way which will perhaps save trouble. The Filipino 'Provisional Government' might now gracefully abdicate its functions, and recall that extravagent absurdity the 'High Commissioner and Ambassador at Hongkong.—Overland
